

Bloompark Consulting and Pact PM announce an exciting new merger.

Bloompark Consulting and Pact PM are excited to announce they are joining forces. The merge will allow their project management portfolios to evolve in a more streamlined way, capitalising on shared experiences and collaborating more effectively to deliver a superior service for new and existing clients.

Bloompark Managing Director, Peter Brogan says “we are cut from the same cloth and are fully aligned, sharing the same goals. It makes sense to become one entity so we can build on our expertise and synergies and provide broader capability for our clients”.

The merger presents a seamless transition for both firms who already have a working model of drawing on their key strengths to deliver uncompromising commitment to client service. With strong reputations across the full spectrum of industry sectors including Education, Aged Care, Commercial, Industrial, Residential, Resources and Infrastructure, the collaborative merger enables a more diversified offering moving forward.

Key to the success of the merger is communication and reassurance. Both companies pride themselves on their personalised service. “Our businesses are highly relationship focussed, and we want to reassure our clients that we will always hold true to this philosophy” emphasises Pact PM founder, Corey Taylor. “It’s about combined energy and evolved thinking, whilst still delivering the same exceptional project outcomes and commitment to our clients”.

The merger demonstrates confidence in their strategy to provide outstanding project management services throughout Australia and will take effect on 1st July, 2021.
